Golden State News of Interest to All

Construction of the new grape juice factory of the California Grape Products Company is under way at Delano, Kern County.

Street improvements in Bakersfield for the first half of the year 1927 will cost in excess of $160,000, it was estimated by the City Engineer.

California ranks fifth in the number of telephone stations in the United States, having more than 6 per cent of the nation's 17,500,000 telephones now in service.

With a total of $32,257,761 in new building permits issued during April, California continued to maintain third position among her sister states in construction activity.

One hundred petitions favoring the formation of a Kern River levee district for the permanent protection of Bakersfield against an overflow of Kern River are being circulated by members of the Bakersfield Civic Commercial Association.

A cache of gold coins amounting to $227.50 was discovered recently in a garden belonging to a resident of Yreka, Siskiyou County. The coins bore dates from 1829 to 1851. Old-timers believed the coins were buried by the late John H. Rammers, a cabinet maker of Yreka.

Six hundred young men and women received the degrees of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Education at the commencement exercises of the University of California at Los Angeles on June 10th. This is the largest graduating class the University has had at the Los Angeles branch.

Since its organization in 1918, the Save-the-Redwoods League has secured the preservation of 3000 acres of virgin redwood timber lands in Humboldt and Del Norte counties. The lands with timber are worth $1,000,000. The 3000 acres are a small fraction of the original 1,500,000 acres of redwoods that once covered a strip of California coastal highlands extending from Monterey county to the Oregon line.

A granite slab, said to be about thirty feet in width, 300 feet in length and twenty feet thick, is being dug out of the earth at the California Granite Company's quarry at Porterville. Trenches have been dug around the granite slab, holes are bored through the trenches and the slab is being lifted gradually. The slab is said to be one of largest ever quarried and contains enough granite, it is asserted, to construct a number of buildings.

Raid on twelve fruit stands in Modesto and near-by towns last week resulted in the condemning of 130 cases of Imperial Valley cantaloupes by A. L. Rutherford, horticultural commissioner. According to Rutherford, the melons did not come up to the state standard. "Stanislaus county, being an extensive producer of cantaloupes, has prided herself upon the quality of cantaloupes produced and shipped, and cannot afford to permit low grade or junk cantaloupes to be put upon the market in the county," Rutherford said.

Stories of people attacked by wild animals in the early days of the West have been recalled by exciting experiences of telephone workers near Lake Tahoe. Max Goodman, while walking through a lonely piece of forest near the lake was attacked by an animal in the darkness, his clothing torn to shreds, and his body badly scratched. Several residents near the lake have since reported being attacked by a large animal at night. The beast always assaults in the darkness and is supposed to be a wildcat or mountain lion.

A granite bonfire, on the summit of Mount Tamapais heralded on the evening of June 13, the start of the Florida-Oregon Indian marathon the next morning under auspices of the Redwood Empire Association. Thirteen Indian runners, three from New Mexico and the rest from California and Oregon, started from San Francisco City Hall at 10 a. m., on a run of 430 miles over the famous Redwood highway, to Grant's Pass, Ore. Fleetest runners are expected to reach Grant's Pass in eight days, but a fifteen-day limit has been set.

A rainstorm, the heaviest on record for June in fifteen years, visited Northern and Central California last week, bringing with it thunder and lightning. The storm broke unexpectedly, without warning from the United States Weather Bureau. It had been charted several hundred miles off the coast, but was not expected to reach land until later. In the main the downpour was beneficial. What small damage was done came from lightning, and there was some destruction of small fruits. But this was far more than offset by benefits to pastures and certain fruits, and lessening of brush fire dangers.

CONSOLIDATED MEETS AT P. A.

A movement to sponsor more junior colleges in Santa Clara County and the announcement of a beautiful pamphlet by the Mountain View Chamber of Commerce were two interesting topics of business at the regular monthly meeting of Santa Clara County Consolidated held at the Cardinal Hotel in Palo Alto at luncheon on Tuesday of this week. Secretary Isabel Colbath of Los Gatos attended.

After Frank Hoge, director of the Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce and President of the Merchants' Association, had welcomed the members to that city, the matter of the purchase of property in Bodfish Canyon as a county park was discussed by those present. T. H. Miller, vice-president of Consolidated and who is presiding in the absence of Wendell C. Thomas, who is in the East, reported that there was considerable enthusiasm in the southern part of the county in support of the purchase of the beautiful canyon. He stated that the Gilroy and Morgan Hill Exchange Clubs, and the granges of both cities would meet at Skeel's Hotel in Morgan Hill next Thursday evening to create more enthusiasm in the property and to interest the Board of Supervisors in the purchase of same, if possible.

Consolidated voted unanimously in favor of a motion that it foster more junior colleges in the county and decided to appoint a committee composed of representatives from every community to study the impending problem of proper preparation of students of the county for the Universities.

Additional discussion of Prune Week distribution methods took place and it was decided to reconsider several plans at the next meeting.

A very attractive rotogravure, pictorial pamphlet with a story about the advantages of Mountain View as a residential center was distributed to the members.

The next meeting of Consolidated will be held at Mountain View, Tuesday, July 5.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Editorial excursion to the Melones power plant in the Sierras last week-end was the culmination of the most noted and successful piece of co-operation in history, the only effort of progress of the kind in the world.

The Press representatives of Northern California, were given a most enjoyable outing and at the same time given an idea of the magnitude of this co-operative project.

The Santa Clara delegation met at the San Jose office of the company and under the supervision and directing hand of "Genial John D." Kuster were taken by auto to Stockton Friday afternoon. This party consisted of L. J. Blake, Santa Clara Journal; A. L. Clark, San Jose Mercury; L. B. Peck, Los Gatos Star; Chas. Sawyer, Los Gatos Mail-News; Harry C. Smith, Campbell Press; P. Milton Smith, Mt. View Register-Leader; Harold Stevens, Palo Alto Times; J. F. Longhran, Santa Clara News; Clem Bradshaw, Sunnyvale Standard; with J. D. Kuster, H. H. Buell and R. A. Hartgraves of San Jose as escorts.

At Stockton the entire party assembled and the procession left there Saturday morning carrying 300 men in 60 cars.

The trip was made through the two irrigation districts that built the big Melones storage dam at a cost of $2,200,000, that they might be assured of water in dry seasons.

A Bountiful dinner was served at the power company's dining room at the new Melones power plant just completed.

Miss Hazel McFarland of Folsom at the ceremonies of opening the new plant, pressed the button that sent the water thru the big turbines and started the generators with a capacity of 36,000 horsepower.

In the afternoon the parade proceeded around the large reservoir going across the upper end of the lake 12 miles from the dam, over Carson Hill to Angels thence east to the Stanislaus power house.

En route a side trip was taken to Standard and the big Pickering lumber mill. This plant is one of the largest modern mills in the country covering acres of ground. The large storage shed alone has a capacity of 12 million feet and is kept nearly filled all the time. Lumber is here cut from the logs, kiln dried and manufactured into door and window frames all in a continuous process.

At Stanislaus the engineers planned a most unique dining room, where the party was served Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

BURGLAR CAUGHT

Assisted by the quick action of Mrs. C. W. Shumway at the phone Geo. Barnes caught a burglar only a few minutes after he had left the H. W. Morton home with his loot. When caught at Hamilton avenue he carried a hair brush and safety razor both being identified by Hal Morton as his. Entrance was made thru the back window and exit thru the door after which Mrs. Shumway immediately phoned the officer. Several other robberies were reported in the community but no definite data could be secured. The captured man gave his name as Lyle Parr of Santa Cruz. He is not thought to be connected with the other cases.

long crosses the river at the power house. Canvass had been laid over to make a perfect pergola and the tables were placed full length on the sides facing up and down stream with an aisle between the diners. With this ideal out door dining room appetites were at their best and received complete satisfaction. At the breakfast hour the water, was released thru the gates without passing the turbines and shot across the canyon making a beautiful white spray far up the mountain side with the morning sun playing thru, a sight long to be remembered. En route home side trips were enjoyed by many to the Calaveras Big Trees and Mercer's Cave near Murphys.

The water power for Stanislaus plant is furnished thru penstocks from a reservoir 1500 feet above. This reservoir is supplied thru a 16-mile wooden flume coming direct from the Spring Gap power plant 20 miles further up the river. Thus the Stanislaus river furnishes water that is used at three power plants before it is spread on the valley lands for irrigation. The power plants are a part of the big Pacific Gas and Electric system that supplies Northern California.

HIGHLIGHTS ON MELONES

Melones Dam, arched against the flow of the Stanislaus river 185 feet high. Height from lowest point of excavation to crest, 214 feet. Length along crest, 590 feet. Thickness at base, 112 feet, and at crest, 24 feet. Second highest overflow type dam in the United States.

Melones Reservoir — Twelve miles long, capacity 112,500 acre feet of water. Cost of dam $2,200,000. Financed by $2,200,000 bond issue voted by the South San Joaquin and Oakdale Irrigation Districts.

Melones Power Project—A concrete-lined horseshoe-shaped tunnel 12 feet in diameter and 4400 feet long. Installed capacity, 36,000 horsepower, with two generators of 18,000 horsepower each. Cost of power development, $2,500,000.

Financing of project such that water is secured without increase in taxes.

Districts exchanged their rights to power development from water stored by dam for sufficient money to pay off bonds and interest. Power company makes semi-annual payments until $5,175,000 is paid, and relinquishes all claim to water leaving power house.

WHAT HATH ROADS WROUGHT!

Because roads and highways are as old as civilization. Because they have been so close to the needs of trade and travel, their development has been taken for granted. First it was the by-path of the caveman hunter, needing only the physical space to negotiate the jungle passes. Later came the ox-cart and the buggy, with wheels large enough in diameter and slow enough in speed to cover the rough places without great difficulty. But now the automobile's terrific speed demands roads as smooth as can be made.

And such roads are worth all they cost. Whether of grading, gravel, concrete or asphalt the motoring public—and that means all of us—must have good roads. Comparable to any financial panic would be the sudden deprivation of any section of the country of its good roads. Yet many communities are suffering from backwardness in this respect. They are "losing out" every inch of the way in competition with progressive communities whose people long ago saw the vision of what good roads meant and set about to make them real.

A city, town, county, state or nation that is not going after improved highways is commercially and socially committing self imposed ostracism from the rest of the world. He who advocates better ways of transportation is to be welcomed. He is a salesman of high order. He is the kind of salesman who can look into the face of a satisfied customer.

Good roads are the monitors of a higher civilization. Bad roads are the landmarks of civic slovenness. But good roads also include common sense in their building, and good business judgment in the letting of contracts. To say that we want a new or improved road from Dingbuctoo to Pankatank is only half the battle. The fight is never finished until the project is seen through with width for future needs, straight and level as practicable, a solid foundation or understructure, adequate thickness, high quality of materials and workmanship, and backed by an honest contractor. Then you've got a road! Until then you've got a wish.

What hath good roads wrought! They have brought prosperity, convenience, safety, self-respect and happiness to countless millions; and these are the great tests of whether they are worth while.

ARE MEN BRAVER NOW?

Before the war they called us "mollycoddles." But what about the boys who went over the top? What about Lindbergh, Chamberlain, Byrd, and even the Catalina and English channel swimmers—men who went over the earth, across continents, and breaking endurance and speed records? Are men braver now, or is human life valued less than in past generations and ancient times? The answer is that present-day achievements are not more hazardous but simply more spectacular; and combined with mechanical perfections and rapid communication they stand out more prominently in the minds of a greater number of people.

At any rate, the romance of adventure is not dead.

THE EXHILARATION OF CHANCE

To say that a part of the Mississippi Valley which suffered from the recent floods and winds will lose some of its population is a myth. The American people are not so constituted. You do not see them leaving their homes and properties, their family associations and romantic environments just because water got over some levees or wind blew down a building.

As one woman who lives near the Mississippi river expressed it. "Shucks, I like thunder and lightning and excitement!" She expressed more of real human nature than she knew when she said that. Say what you will, people will cling to their old homes and cherished haunts. They will move on account of climate, when finances permit; but you seldom hear of a Middlewesterner admitting that he is leaving his state because of cyclonic winds, an Easterner and Northerner getting out because of cold and deep snows, a Southerner migrating because of the hot sun, or a Westerner running away from earthquakes. It just isn't done. In fact, there is something of the very opposite in the make-up of us humans. We all like to gamble with nature. And in the process farms produce crops, men build industries, schools and colleges flourish, religion carries on, Nature compensates abundantly to every section, and civilization advances.

Flood relief!—then farm relief.
Two can drive crazier than one.

Competition is the wife of trade: she makes him get busy.

Our legislature pass bills and the people pay them.

SYMBOLS OF SAFETY

In the world war, steel and concrete "pill boxes" afforded the fighting men their greatest protection against the violence of high explosives. The same indestructible materials are employed in the construction of modern safe deposit vaults; and they offer the maximum of security to those who desire exceptional safeguards for valuable articles. Most American Trust offices are equipped to provide this protection. The cost is trifling.

DAWN

The stars blinked sleepily and closed their eyes
As the sun crept over the hills
And the birds in their nests awakened to cries
Of the mother bird's wavering trills.

The long rays of light awakened
the squirrels,
But the woods still silently lay
Till the calls of the animals seemingly heralds
The dawn of a new born day.

And over and over, 'tis the same
every day
Yet we miss all this glory by lying abed,
So when we grow cross and tired
just say
"I'll watch the morning sun as it climbs out of bed."

Cooperating with the prevention of the spread of the puncture vine and the reduction of fire hazard, Tulare County supervisors have urged all farmers in their respective districts to burn all grass and weeds on their property bordering the highways. After this is done, the supervisors plan to burn along the roads. This, it is believed, will check the fire menace to grain and other fields of inflammable feeds and will aid in the puncture vine war.

35 ADDED TO CAMPBELL ALUMNI

On Friday evening last, the 1927 senior class of the Campbell Union High School passed off the stage and its members joined the ever growing numbers of alumni of the institution.

The group of thirty-five, twenty boys and fifteen girls, made a pretty and imposing appearance as they marched up the aisles and took their places on the platform.

Daintily arranged baskets of the class flowers, sweet peas and honeysuckle, made an effective setting composed chiefly of the colors lavender and green.

The music of the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. A. A. Thielke was very good and elicited much merited applause.

Miss Ruth Matteson's sweet soprano voice was never heard to better advantage than in her two solos, which were accompanied by Miss Beryl Peterson.

Mr. Lee Emerson Bassett, professor of public speaking at Stanford University gave an excellent talk based on the theme, "Houses not made with hands."

His opening remark was to the effect that a speaker at a commencement was much like the bridegroom at a wedding, noticeable for his main sterength and awkwardness.

He mentioned previous visits of his to Campbell and told of its founding and the resulting type of substantial people who came to make it their home. That they had a vision of something more than accumulating money is evidenced by our school and the number who have gone out from it to higher and better living.

He referred to the spiritual side of man, saying that everybody lives a spiritual life, it may be sordid, bigoted and full of hatred but it is the life of the spirit. It is in the realm of our spirits that we live the better and richer life when our spirits are trained to see the beautiful things of the world about us, in the physical beauties and in the people we meet.

By not cultivating the right kind of emotions we miss the things that make life most worth while. His advice to the class was to learn to live for the things that cannot be taken away from one even if material blessings fail to be realized.

Principal D. H. Cramer presented the students with their diplomas stating that he hoped they represented some of the things which the speaker had stressed.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. C. Robins, and then the usual reception was held during which parents and friends extended their congratulations.

ELIZABETH THACKERY

Mrs. Elizabeth Thackery who passed away on June 12 at the County Hospital was one of Campbell's old and highly respected citizens.

She was born in Mercer, Mercer county, Pa., July 21, 1837, lacking but a month of having reached the advanced age of ninety.

She came to California in 1892 and was married two years later, September 4, at Los Gatos, to Charles Thackery.

They moved to Campbell the following year and this was their home from then on. Mr. Thackery passed away about seven years ago, and his wife continued her residence here until ill health necessitated her removal to the hospital.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Caroline Tucker, who also is at the hospital. She was the loving stepmother of Mrs. J. J. Sargent of Redwood City and the late Fred W. Thackery of San Jose.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the parlors of Hocking and Williams, San Jose. Interment was in the Los Gatos Cemetery.

During her many years in Campbell Mrs. Thackery was one of the most faithful members of the Methodist Church, continuing her attendance long after walking was a real effort.

She will be held in remembrance for her devotion to her church and other good works.

VETERANS CAN GET INSURANCE AGAIN

July 2nd is the last chance. The Government has designated that time as the last possible date that Veterans can reinstate their insurance, Post Commander J. R. Hewitt of the American Legion said yesterday.

For a veteran in good health now to reinstate he must pass a physical examination and pay two monthly premiums on the amount of insurance that he wishes to be re-instated. Veterans disabled due to the war, as the result of an injury or disease suffered or contracted while in active service during the World War are to pay all their back monthly premiums from the date of lapse with interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, compounded annually from their several due dates on the amount of insurance to be re-instated.

It is generally understood that the amount of the back due premiums can be borrowed from the government at interest of 5 per cent. Veterans should avail themselves of this chance to re-instate their insurance and get in communication with the contact office, Mr. Becker of the Veterans' Bureau, San Francisco, or E. H. Melvin, Los Gatos.

And then — let electricity do all the hard work

JUNE may remind you of the day of days. Or perhaps a day that is coming this month.

But no matter, if you would take care of the hand she gave to you, give her the labor-saving electrical appliances. They do all the hard house work. They wash the clothes and dishes, clean the house, cook automatically, and do innumerable little tedious things that wear a woman so. They preserve the bloom of youth. They give her free hours to spend with the children.

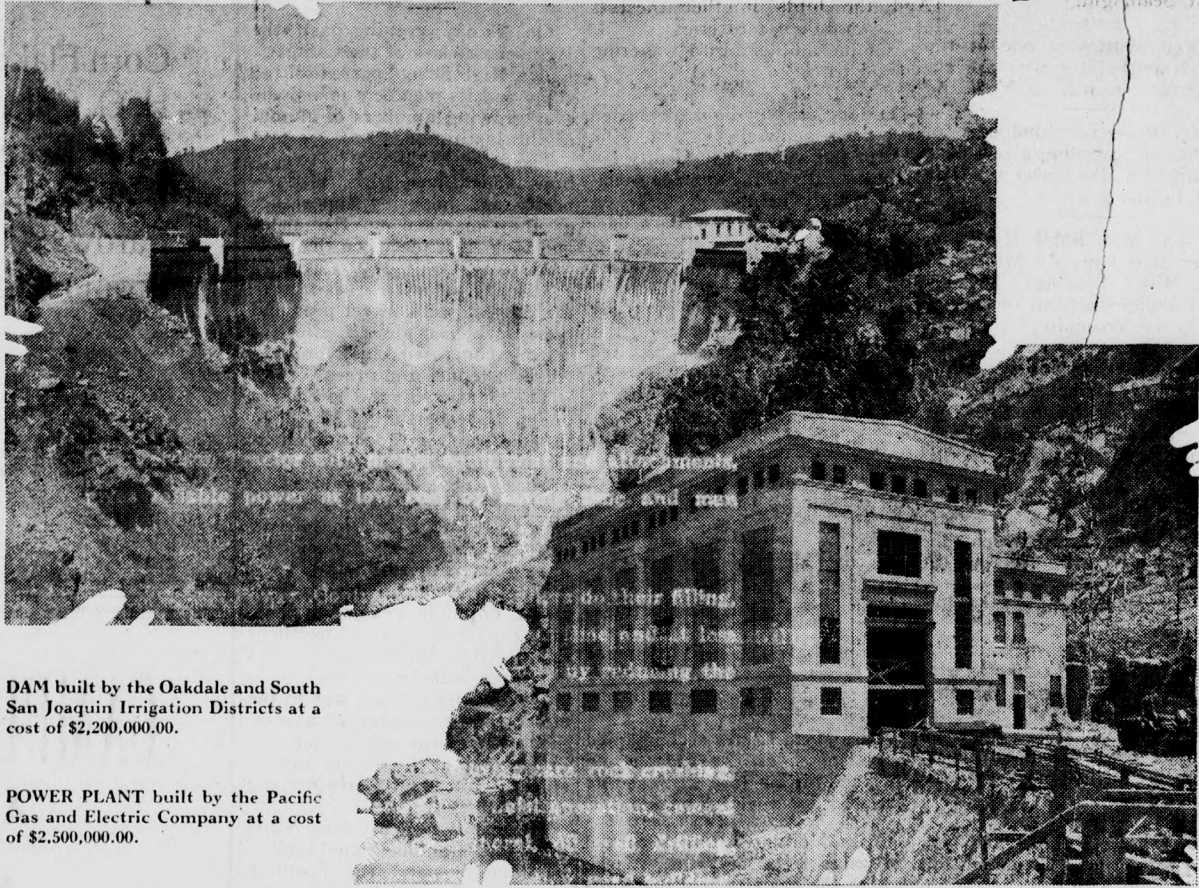

Buy her these electrical appliances for a wedding present or for the anniversary. She will reward your thoughtfulness by being the same youthful pal, always.

POWER PLANT built by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company at a cost of $2,500,000.00.

THE MELONES PROJECT demonstrates a principle that farmers primarily interested in water for irrigation and power companies primarily interested in water for power, although adhering to their primary interests, can aid each other. In exchange for the use of water passing through this power house the Pacific Gas and Electric Company will pay the Districts the sum of $5,175,000.00 over a period of forty years, this amount entirely paying off the bonded indebtedness of the Districts, plus interest. The farmers get water for irrigation without cost.

Wilbur Hall to Join Cast as Relative; More Actors Needed

There's an old saying—"First come, first served," and it's likely to apply in the case of pageant costumes, according to Director Arthur Cyril, whose chief concern these days is securing recruits for family groups.

Indications are that "La Primavera" this year's pageant billed for June 24 and 25, will eclipse anything so far attempted. From the skilled pen of B. Ignacio Ortega, himself descended from those proud Californians of whom he writes, it is fairly rife with emotion. However, the script call for large groups—in fact the story simply can't be "put across" without them.

NEED LARGE CAST

To sum up, close to 300 players, in addition to the principals, are needed. Don Rafael Moreno, owner of the hacienda which forms the background for Ortega's brilliant tale, is a great land baron, a grand fellow who does things on a large scale. Hence when he gives a fiesta (in the second act), he puts it on right, and invites in all the neighbors. This meant, in early California, that the dandies and gallants, maids and matrons, caballeros and minstrels rode in from settlements hundreds of miles distant, anxious to gobble up Moreno's choice mutton, assuage their thirst with his choice wines, and dance to the music of his imported orchestra.

Now, how in the name of common sense, can this gay company be indicated unless by players actually "in the flesh?" It simply can't be done. Director Cyril must have players.

BE AN ACTOR

It's really no trick at all to "make the grade." All one needs is to apply for the job. Then he'll get a costume and a few directions, and the thing is done. And after it's all over, and the plaudits of his friends sounds sweet in his ears, he'll be mighty glad he heeded Cyril's plea.

Seriously, Director Cyril must have more men and women, boys and girls. The success of the great spectacle literally depends on having a large cast of players. Los Gatos has won a State-wide reputation as the Pageant City, and if this reputation is to be maintained, the coming production must be 100 per cent perfect.

A stunning set of costumes has been received from Goldstein's famous San Francisco costumers, and as all sizes, colors and styles were ordered, prospective actors and actresses will experience no difficulty getting a perfect fit. However, as was mentioned in the beginning, "First come, first served!"

Rehearsals are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. Be at the pageant grounds tomorrow night and sign on the dotted line. That will be a brave stroke in the name of your city. And don't forget there are but four rehearsals left before the water curtain is torn aside to reveal "La Primavera," Los Gatos' 1927 pageant.

WILBUR HALL COMING

Here's a bit of interesting news—Wilbur Hall, whose name has been identified with Los Gatos pageants for years, wires he will make every effort to join the cast and appear as one of Moreno's relatives. Hall, a gifted writer, whose life of Luther Burbank has won international notice, is still at Santa Rosa gathering data on the career of the great plant wizard. Mrs. Hall, who appeared in last year's production, will lead a group in the coming performance.

Experiments on Kings County alkali lands based upon the results obtained in redemption work along similar lines done on Kearney Farm near Fresno by the University of California College of Agriculture have been launched upon three different ranches in Kings County. The sulphur treatment is being used as it was in the Fresno experiments, which achieved such success as to command the attention of the agricultural world. Five plots have been set aside on the Kings County Farm, where six tons of sulphur are to be used in the series of experiments. Amounts varying from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds per acre are to be placed in the soil.

A survey of the fruit crop prospect has been completed in the Lodi district by E. A. Humphrey, manager of the Earl Fruit Company and a recognized authority on fruit. Humphrey estimates the table grape crop to be 75 per cent normal, or 15 per cent more than last year; wine grapes 85 to 90 per cent normal crop; peaches 60 per cent; plums very short; apricots 75 per cent, and promise to bring a fancy price on account of other apricot districts having a very short crop. Pears are dropping very badly just now, probably on account of unfavorable weather during the growing season.

Slime and tip-burn have spread throughout the lettuce fields, reducing crops in Central California from 40 to 50 per cent. The Los Angeles and San Diego crops are about 80 to 90 per cent of the average. Planting of lettuce in Humboldt County has been retarded owing to continued rain.

Watermelon growers of the Brawley district met recently to agree upon a means of financing the inspection of watermelon shipments. County Horticultural Commissioner B. A. Harrigan presided. A dollar a car is to be charged against the growers for inspection. The shippers will deduct this amount from moneys paid the producer and will make weekly payments to the inspection account.

Due to a heavy attack of western blight, tomatoes are not as promising this year as they have been in the past, according to E. E. Welty, county horticultural commissioner. The acreage this year is not as large as last season because the canning varieties have not been so extensively planted, he reports. The crop this year is a few days later than last year, when first shipments were made May 20th.

Bootleggers don't pour into this country any faster than some of our thirsty citizens empty out.
